NATIONAL WHIG NOMINATIONS.

FOR PRESIDENT, GENERAL WINFIELD SCOTT. OF NEW JERSEY.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT. WILLIAM A. GRAHAM. OF NORTH CAROLINA.

RESOLVED. That the Whig people of Washington, conscious that the ground they trend is worthy of the consecrated mane it bears only so long as it is peopled by men who hold to the Union of the States as the source and fountain of the hiesding- of public order and private right—of liberty and law—of happiness at home, and honor throughout the world; and believing that in the principles and policy of the Whig party, and in the tried patriotism of its glorious leaders, is the best safeguard of the Union from domestic discord or foreign quarrel, no note manuar to those principles, and will rally with ardent and united hearts around the flag of the Union, to whomsover of these leaders it may be confided in the approaching contest.—Proceedings of a Whig meeting prior to the nomination.

Hope Revived in Georgia!

The news from this State grows more and more cheering every day. The editor of the Richmond Whig has seen a gentleman who has travelled through most of it recently, and who expressed the strongest confidence that its vote would be cast for Scott. The people are thoroughly disgusted with the leaders of the opposing factions, and the more Scott's character and services are canvassed, the more is he endeared to the popular heart. In the meantime a very pretty quarrel is springing up between Mr. Toombs and the Southern Rights party. It was supposed that that gentleman, in consequence of some letter of his, would support Pierce; but he has recently declared that he would not do so, but would give his vote to Webster and Jenkins. Upon the announcement of this fact, the Federal Union comes out and charges him with having pledged himself, when a candidate for the Senate, to support the Democracy; and now, that paper says, "he has played a treacherous part, unworthy the respect of his friends and opponents!"

We learn also from this State that the Hon. James Johnson, a Representative in Congress from the second Congressional district, and who was elected as a Union Democrat, has declared himself in favor of Gen. Scott, in conjunction with a number of Union Democrats in his district. Mr. Johnson was one of the signers of Messrs. Toombs and Stephens's card! The Georgia Citizen states that during the last Congressional canvass the Southern Rights Democrats assailed Mr. Johnson as a Democrat pledged to the maintenance of the Compromise; and that he triumphed over them most gloriously, being sustained throughout that heated contest by the Union men of that district, the great body of whom are now warmly engaged in the support of Scott.

The Election.

This event will take place just one month hence. The work of the parties is not yet done, though but few men have yet to choose the side they prefer. Great watchfulness, however, is necessary. It has been the practice of our opponents to spring surprises upen us on the eve of the contest, and by adroit and dishonest schemes to endeavor to carry out by misrepresentation and unfairness what truth and fair dealing could not obtain.

At the present moment our opponents depend on the effects of loud bragging; but their hopes do not sustain them in this, and their most knowing men do not encourage the feeling they would produce.

On carefully surveying the field, we can come to no other conclusion than that we shall elect General Scott by the votes of the fellowing States, trious day of the 2d December. The coronation laughter]—but the civil qualifications of General viz: Vermont. 5: Massachusetts. 13: Rhode of the Emperor Napoleon 1. (2d Dec. 1804:) the Scott were vastly superior to those of General Pierce. Jersey, 7; Pennsylvania, 27; Delaware, 3; Ma- d'Etat of Louis Napoleon himself (2d Dec. 1851); 23; Indiana, 13; Iowa, 4; Wisconsin, 5; Michigan, 9; Kentucky 12; Louisiana, 6; Tennessee, 12; California, 4; total, 208. But emitting fiftynine of these votes, the success of the Whig ticket is still secured.

Georgia is by many regarded as by no means lost, while the signs in other southern States are much better than our fondest hopes had led us to expect. Virginia itself is a very doubtful State.

"You can state this fact in the Union !" The Washington Union at last announces, upon the authority of some anonymous Loco letter writer, that General Scott did not give four hundred dollars to the widow of the German who lost his life in firing a salute at Columbus, Ohio. We a price! have wondered that the Union had not made this denial earlier. We all knew it was going to do so at some time. It has frequently denied things very undeniable!

The Whigs do not treat the Union's candidate so. They do not deny the purchase by General Pierce, at the cost of a cent, of a stick of candy, for a boy, who was a total stranger to him! Neither do they deny the gift of a quarter to the Sabbath School treasury! How illiberal is the Union! how unkind! how cruel! Fie upon it, that it should not only obscure the military fame of General Scott by the blaze of glory it would kindle in honor of England's warrior chief, but even obliterate his claims upon our regard as a man of human sympathy and charity! The hopes of the Union are feeble when it thus acts! BUT NO OHIO PAPER DENIES THE STATE-

Wallace, editor of the Philadelphia Sun, was once, in his early days, confined in a lunatic asylum. On entering the parlor of a hotel, his endeavor to walk near the walls, lest he might tread on "the rich cloth spread over the floor," attracted the attention of the people; but on getting opposite a large mirror, his delight at seeing the beautiful youth within was so intense that he rushed forward to embrace him, and smashed the glass to atems. This caused his arrest and detention until his friends paid costs and removed him-an act they have since frequently repented.

Who is to be the Next President? The two leading Loco organs of this country, the New York Herald and the Washington Union, agree that Gen. Pierce must be the man. The latter paper, of yesterday's date, contains twoand a-half mortal columns of an elaborate argument to prove the fact. The operation is very ingenious, very tedious, and to us very inconclusive. In fact, as we lay down the paper, we cannot but think that the probability of a probable event would be of more easy demonstration!

The Liquor Business.

Among the lower tribe of Locofoco papers in this country is a little skeet called the Morning Star, issued in New York. It quotes a statement of the fact that an outrage had been committed on the property of a man named James Ritchie, of Roxbury, Massachusetts, who is active in the 'Maine liquor law folly," his garden having been entered and his fruit trees girdled; and it thereupon remarks that "it must be confessed that such attacks upon individuals are the legitimate consequence of an attack upon the rights of the right to pass any such law as that of Maine;" and that "if a repetition of the Boston Tea Party is the consequence, those who approve the first, are obliged, in justice, to appreve the second."

This threatening declaration is in tolerable keeping with the course of the Star and many other opponents of the Maine law; but how that paper, stupid as it is, can ever imagine any analogy to exist between the mean, wanton destruction of the orchard of a sober and useful citizen, and the acts of the Boston Tea Party, is more than we can comprehend. Whether property is to be destroyed, however, by poor, mean worthless, and besotted wretches, under the frenzied influence of grog, or by the sordid fiends who rave because they cannot make and sell to them the baneful draught, is the choice we have efore us. We prefer the latter. Let the sacrificers become the sacrificed.

Extensive Coal Bed. The railroad from Cincinnati to Zanesville, through Circleville, Lancaster, &c., will pass a bed of cannel coal, in Perry county, Ohio, which has been announced by Professor Mather and other distinguished geologists to be the most extensive in the United States, the depth of deposite ranging from sixty to one hundred and twelve feet.

Improvement in Telegraphing.

It is stated that Mr. J. W. Kelly, Pittsburg manager of the Lake Telegraphic Line, says he has invented, and is about applying for a patent for, a continuous self-repeating magnet, by which an operator in Halifax can write to New Orleans on one continuous wire, and receive an answer, without change of way-switches. The newlyinvented machine can be worked as heretofore. with but one instrument and magnet, while it requires much less galvanic power.

How they talk!

The Richmond Whig remarks that a Locofoco paper expresses surprise that General Scott's keepers should have been guilty of the imprudence of letting the old gentleman run at large;" and says that this is the same sort of talk we had about General Harrison, and we all recollect its effect. But the Loco's surprise should cease when he recollects that the Whigs have no such motive to keep a guard over their candidate as the Locos have over theirs! Verbum sap.

An Imperial Climax!

The Paris Univers contains a criticism on Proudhon's new book, which would be amusing, were it not blasphemous. It says:

"The author is not content with insulting, ac cording to his custom, the clergy, Christianity, and God himself-he goes further: he insults the Emperor and the Empire!"

Stanley's Portrait of Gen. Scott. This accurate likeness and beautiful painting, on exhibition at Taylor & Maury's, attracts universal praise. Stanley has done henor to both artist and subject in this admirable effort.

The colored population of Cincinnati is social disabilities that rest upon them, they cannot well compete with white laborers.

One of oar strong Locos was heard to say yesterday that at first he thought Pierce was sure to be elected, but now he considered it doubtful."

THE EXHIBITION. -At the adjourned meeting of the Committee on the exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute, last night, there were present all the members but two, which is an excellent sign of zeal in the membership. No very important business which would be of interest to our readers was transacted, except the fixing of the time for the opening of the exhibition, (24th of February,) and the appointment of a subcommittee to attend especially to the proper people ;" that "no number of legislators have a representation of our city thereat. A circular and address to the public was adopted and ordered to be printed. Several sub-committees were appeinted, and they go to work immediately.

It is a great pity that the Magistrate cannot settle these little cases without sending them to court. The Magistrate, under the existing law, is obliged to commit, and, as in this case, the stealing of fifty cents costs the government as many dollars.

Mr. Vinton's Opinion.

Mr. Vinton, in his remarks at the Whig meeting, on Thursday, said that he had known Gen. Scott intimately for twenty years. He had been privileged to meet with him probably a hundred times in the company of the ablest statesmen of this country, and with the representatives of fereign countries. He considered General Scott Constitution and union of these States. one of the best read men in the civil and political history of the country whom he ever knew. He had frequently been surprised at the fullness and accuracy of the General's knowledge in regard to early legislative history of the United States, and of the several States. He seldom met, in these conversations of intelligent statesmen, a gentleman of as correct information upon all subjects pertaining to the civil administration of the government, as General Scott; and he never knew a man who had a higher respect for the laws and civil authority of the country. believed General Scott to be in every respect entirely qualified to perform the duties of the office of President, with high honor to himself, and with great usefulness to the country. He had also known Gen. Pierce several years, having been a member of the House during Mr. Pierce's term of service in the body. Mr. Pierce was a quiet, gentlemanly man in his deportment, and maintained friendly relations with his fellowmembers. But he was never considered by his party, nor by his warmest friends, as a "man of mark," and nobody sought te learn his views on any great measure of public policy. He was not put forward to advocate or defend even party measures, nor placed by a party Speaker on committees where important work was expected. said to be only 4,000. With all the civil and that he would "vote to a scribe" what he considered to be New Hampshire Democracy!

Mr. Vinton contrasted the history of Scott and Pierce, not so much as military men as civiliansstatesmen—at some length, and said that, in view of that history, and from his own knowledge the two men, "he had no hesitancy in saying that the civil qualifications-he would not presume to assure his audience that his military capacity was equal to that of Gen. Pierce, [roars of

Hon. Ben Mardin, a distinguished politician of Kentucky, and formerly a member of Congress from that State, died at Bardstown, on the 24th General Scott at the West.

FRANKFORT, Sept. 30, 5 o'clock p. m.—Gen. Scott and suite left Lexingten at 2 o'clock p. m., by the railroad for Frankfort, where they arrived half-past 3 o'clock. As the train reached Frankfort, guns were fired and other demonstra tions of rejoicing were evinced by the people as Sembled at the depot.

Immediately the cars stopped, the Hon. Jas.
Harlan and a committee of the citizens entered the carriage and received Gen. Scott from the hands of the committee which had accompanied him from Lexington. The Scott Guards, Georgetown, and the Governor's Guards, Frankfort, were on the ground, and admirable order was observed.

The line was then formed, and marched to the capitol. Generals Scott and Wool, accompanied by the committee, ascended to the steps, when the Hon. James Harlan spoke as follows : GEN. SCOTT AND GEN. WOOL: In accordance with an act of Congress, imposing upon you the important duty of selecting a site for an asylum for infirm and disabled soldiers, you have visited this State. In anticipation of the honor and pleasure of meeting their distinguished fellowcitizens, this vast assemblage of your admiring countrymen have come forth with willing hearts to give you a warm and cordial reception. In their behalf, and as their honored organ, I tender you sincere welcome to their hospitalities. We rejoice to see you; for thus, before our eyes, you bring to our minds the many glorious events with which your history is identified. So long as the history of the last war with Great Britain and that of the late war with Mexico exists, your names will ever be remem-bered with pride. Kentucky has been called the dark and bloody ground. Seventy years ago, ing and beating a colored man named Green, on on the very spot you have just visited, Lower Sunday last. They gave security to appear at Blue Licks, the early settlers of this country were engaged in the most sanguinary battle known in the history of Indian warfare. The bodies of about one hundred and sixty of as brave men as ever shouldered a rifle were left dead on the field. Fatal as that day was to our people, the survivors persevered, and finally drove the savages to the far west, and now you behold a prosperous country, which a little more than half a century ago, was a vast wilderness. The associations, gentlemen, of your past lives, are pleasing to us as Kentuckians, admiring as we lo your brilliant qualities, and feeling a just pride in whatever contributes to the glory and greatness of our common country; and our admiration is confined not alone to the incidents of your public career, but extends to the commend able purity of your course as citizens in private Gentlemen, permit me to say there is one feeling which pervades the breasts of the people

Honored as we are by your visit, and rejoicing to see you, in the name of the citizens of this city and county, and of the persons here assembled, I tender you a cordial welcome to the capital of Kentucky.

To which General Scott replied:

Fellow-citizenns and my fair contrywomen: Hap-py, indeed, am I to find myself in your midst. It is a proud moment in my history, in which I stand upon the thresheld of the Capitol of Kentucky, surrounded by such a vast assemblage of her intelligent and patriotic citizens, and thus receive the spontaneous greeting extended to me through your eloquent organ, in whom I am proud to say I recognise an ancient and a valued friend

Need I say that all these events fill me with delight? Need I say that my obligations to Kentucky are as great as my remembrances of Kentucky are fraught with gratification? Her State abounds with patriots and heroes; and pre-eminently she stands among her sister States, from the time of Daniel Boone, through the eras of Shelby and the glorious Scott-I mean Governor Scott, the hero famed in the revelutionary wardown to my own time, down to the days when I had the honor of the advantage of standing side by side with Kentucky's valiant sens, opposed to British regulars and to Mexican myriads. Yes, Kentucky's sons have ever done their whole duty, have ever proved themselves equal to any emergency, and capable of contending with any troops in the world. It has been my lot to serve with them among others, and never will I fail to bear witness to their valor and their discipline.

I need not, however, refer to the valiant sons in Mexico-deeds which are familiar to you all. I need not speak of that bloody field on which so many of your relatives were slain. I need not speak of Buena Vista; for one is here who was actively engaged in that scene. He will tell you of the zeal of Kentuckians upon that occasion. He will speak of the heroes who fell on that glorious day. But I may say with pride it has been my lot to serve upon other occasions with Kentucky's valiant sons. I may refer with a swelling heart to her gallant Campbell, by whose side I fought, and whose eyes, alas, I closed with my own hands in death. where you washed out, in your own and the blood of your enemies, the disgrace cast upon the American arms by the suris the first State in war, the first State in peace, and always first in devotion to our glorious Union. That devotion pervades all classes of her citizens: it is evident in her soldiers and in her statesmen, and it was embodied in all its fervor and depth in the person of that most eminent of her sons, the great orator and statesman who has so recently taken his departure from these scenes of earth and left a sadness in the hearts of the sons of Kentucky-and he has left a blank in the councils of the nation. And who is there here that does not love this lorious Union with a deep and lasting affection? Not one; and, I too, am an humble servant and devotee of that Union. I, too, would stand firmly by her side, whether threatened by domestic traitors or foreign foes. I have not, perhaps, the power to say that this Union shall not be dissolved whilst I survive, but I can say that it shall not be overthrown and leave me a survivor. To the last hour of my life will I defend it alike from Northern and Southern fanaticism. I say this as to obey its commands, and victory would, as it ever had, perch upon your standards?

Fellow-soldiers and fellow-veterans! Have you forgotton all this? NO! To the latest moment reception I thank you all, my countrymen; and reception I thank you all, my countrymen; and by this term, permit me to say, I include all classes—Democrats, Whigs, native born, and adopted citizens—for I have no doubt men of all parties are here, who have come forward to welcome two old seldiers to your midst. Gen. Wool is a moderate Democrat, and I am not a bigoted or infatuated Whig. I may then address you all, when I return you thanks, as I now do, sincerely and truly, for your kindness. Thanks, my fel low-citizens-thanks to you, one and all. [Loud cheers were given as the General concluded, and General Wool was then called forth, and made a few very happy remarks in response.]

Gen. Scott then proceeded to the cemetry, pre ceded by the mifitary, and followed by numerous The cemetery is a most beautiful spot. After driving round the great Kentucky monument, and viewing the graves where Daniel Boone and wife rest side by side, Gen. Scott returned, being much fatigued.

Gen. Wool was taken in charge by a large body of Democrats, who retain him as their guest. Gen. Lawson proceeded on with his personal friends to Louisville. Cannons continue firing, and great enthusiasm is exhibited in the streets. A Whig meeting is to be held this evening in the capitol, at which Gov: Metcalf and others

A Democratic meeting is also to be held, pre sided over by Gov. Powell. Writing for glory and printing for fun, Affairs in Georgetown.

GEORGETOWN, Oct. 2-12 m. Signs of Prosperity.—On the south side of Water street, there has been opened during the last year or two, fourteen new wholesale flour and grocery stores. Most of the proprietors of these grocery stores. Most of the proprietors of these establishments are gentlemen from elsewhere, and many of the houses which they now occupy were for several years tenantless and unroductive. There is not at this time a single vacant building on this side of the street. There are, however, on the opposite side quite a number of fine large ware-houses, which we earnestly hope soon to see occupied in a very different manner to what they are at the present time. There are also on the same side several miserable old dilapidated frame tenements, which, if the owners would act the part of wisdom, they would remove, and erect in their stead good substantial dwellings and stores. We have no doubt such an investment would pay well.

Since the resumption of navigation upon our canal over one hundred boats, heavily laden with with coal, wood, grain, flour, &c., &c., have ar-The amount of every kind of preduce coming into our market by this route is immense and our enterprising merchants are wide awake and making hay while the sun shines.

There was a sale this morning of $500 of the stock of the Corporation of Georgetown at $101. Our citizens generally will be much gratified to learn that the Hon. Truman Smith, of Connecticut, is coming to reside in our town.

Our market this morning was well supplied with fine meats, butter, vegetables, &c. The following are some of the prices: Best cuts of beef, 12½c. per lb.; mutton, 6@10c.; pork, 12½c.; bacon hams, 14c.; butter, 20@27c.; lard, 14c.; eggs, 16@18c. per doz.; potatoes, sweet and Irish, 25c. per peck; corn, 12½c. per doz.; chickens, $3@$3.25; egg plants, 3@6c. apiece; ap-

The supply of beef cattle at Drover's Rest this week amounted in all to 700 head, 356 of which were taken by Georgetown and city butchers, at $2 75@$8 37½ per 100 lbs. gross; 224 head continued on to Baltimore, and 20 head left over.

Sheep, $1 75@$2 50 per head.

We were assured this morning, by one who knows, that from one hundred and fifty to two hundred dwellings in our town could find ready tenants, at rents varying from $100 to $300. Why do not our capitalists go to building?

There were sales yesterday of some 2,000 bbls. flour, good brands, at $4 25. A sale this morn ing of 1,600 bushels prime red wheat at 98 cents; prime white brings $1@$1 05. Corn unchanged.

WESLEY AND HIS COADJUTORS.

WESLEY AND HIS COADJUTORS.

CELDOM have I taken up a book of biography with which I have been so well pleased and really profited as with Weeley and his Coadjutors, by Prof. Larrabec. Those pure pages sparkle like diamonds, with strange as well as beautiful incidents, touching in turn every chord of the human heart, and arousing its latent energies to deeds of noble daring. Weeley is exhibited as he really was, a most wonderful man; wonderful really was, a most wonderful man; wonderful really was, a most wonderful man; wonderful really was, a meant of Providence in reviving pure religible in the world.

The second volume opens with Charles Wesley, that prince of lyric poets, who is made to pass before the reader so well-defined that he seems to see his form and hear his voice, and be thrilled with his sublime hymns, a rich legacy left to the Church in all after time.

Whitefield, the peerless orator and devoted Christian, next appears, with his matchless powers, arousing Great Britain and America with an eloquence and unction that literally bore down all before it, turning the people to God by thousands, till from the most degraded—degraded because forsaken of their religious teachers—plants of right-counsess were seen springing up and adorning the garden of the Lord. John Fletcher closes the list of notable worthies in the two volumes before us, and every way worthy is he to do it. He is made to pass along in his own incomparable, beautiful simplicity, with a holiness all but superhuman, possessing talents that an angel might have envied; the soutest and ablest controversialist writer of his own or any subsequent age.—Zion's Herald.

BALTIMORE, September 18, 1851

GENTLEMEN: The cure of Mr. Robert Gault, by the use of three bottles of Hampton's Vegetable Tincture, as per his certificate, is, I think, almost unprecedented. His case of extremely excruciating suffering, from Chronic Inflammatory Rheumatism, came immediately under my own observation, through the last four years, which I considered entirely hosters. tirely hopeless. Through my carnest persuasion, he was induced to try your invaluable Tincture. I was prompted to remark at the time, that if medicine would cure Mr. Gault it certainly would "remove mountains." The knowledge swe to the afflicted, (and particularly to those with com plaints like his,) to make generally known the healing powers of this truly wonderful medicine. Yours, most respectfully, CHILLS AND FEVERS. It is seldom we see a radical cure in fever and ague, under the common treatment of quinine, arsenic, and patent medicines so highly extolled by physicians. There are objections to the general use of quinine, as some has been found to contain arsenic, and the use of it has been followed by swelling of the face, spleen, liver, &c. Another objection is, the disease is very liable to resur, upon slight exposure or fatigue. The patient will find a permanent cure, or the money refunded, at the German Medical Office of Doctore RROTHERS & GRAY, opposite the Smithsonian Institution, Island.
